NUMBER 298

The country will rejoice that Delegate Cannon will soon be spiked.

There were one hundred and twenty-eight failures in the country during the past week.

Mr. Hiram Bleim, of Montgomery county, Pennsylvania, is the father of twenty-two married daughters. His two sons are not married.

Ex-Senator Conkling has been nominated for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. This places one of the most brilliant lawyers in the country on that important bench.

The report comes that Madame Nilsson is driven almost to desperation on the tragedy of her husband's insanity. She has cried so much of late that her sight is greatly impaired.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ingersoll will give a series of receptions during Lent, and of course will entertain well. Mr. Ingersoll chose the time to show his contempt for the observance of the Lenten season.

It is said that there are enough silver dollars in the United States treasury vault to supply every possible demand for the next ten years, and yet the work of coinage goes on, and when it will stop is an unanswerable conundrum.

The familiar story is going again that Mr. Tilden is in the habit of going up six flights of stairs in his Granary Park house several times before breakfast. How can there be six flights of stairs in a four-story house?—New York Tribune.

That story will do to match his candidacy for the Presidency.

It would seem that some of the Ohio Republicans point with "special pride" to the fact that not one of the "300" brass medals goes to that State, to which the Cleveland Herald responds: "Weigh this on the credit balance of the State when all accounts are made even."

General Logan has firmly made up his mind not to follow General Grant in supporting the bill to restore General Fitz John Porter to his former rank. He doesn't believe that it is quite time for the government to offer a prize for gross neglect of duty and downright treachery.

New York State contracted for an elephant when it contracted for the new capitol. It has already cost $13,000,000, as much as the capitol at Washington, and still is liable to fall, and before it is finished it will cost $20,000,000, and then it will not be safe; and beside that it will cost a quarter of a million a year to keep it in order.

It is not yet decided, it seems, whether Mrs. Garfield will attend the memorial service of her husband in Chicago next Monday, or go to Washington. Propriety would dictate that her place was in Washington on that day, when the Congress of the nation will pay its tribute to her husband—the martyr President of the United States.

Our Minister Morton to France, is among the very front rank as an entertainer, and his dinners are noted for their richness, and command the admiration of the first men in France. While Mr. Morton is doing so much to entertain French statesmen, this country is entertaining some doubt as to Mr. Morton's honesty in regard to the Peruvian matter. It would seem as if it were about time for him to turn his attention from the costly spread to the guano bed. The transition may not be very pleasant, but it may be much needed.

The temperance people at Madison, claim to have carried an important point by the passage of a bill which provides for the punishment of drunkenness. The bill changes the old law by making the outside limit of the fine for drunkenness $50 in place of $10, and imprisonment in the county jail for 60 days instead of 5. The bill has, however, the provisional clause stating that this change shall not abridge the powers of cities and villages to provide a different mode of punishment for such offenses. It does not appear, however, that the bill, should it become a law, will be of any special benefit to the temperance cause.

Girls, here is a true story, and it is well worth reading, and should be remembered. Senator Sawyer is one of the most practical of all our rich men, and the New York Tribune tells this of him: He called his young daughters to him one day, and asked them, as a testimony of their affection for him, to learn to make their own clothes and to cook a good dinner. The young girls cheerfully promised, and not long after invited their parents and a few friends to dine with them. They cooked the perfect dinner themselves, and each wore a dainty gown made by her own hands. So pleased was the Senator that he gave to each of them a check for $25,000.

The thing that gives Mr. J. W. Mackay the most trouble, is how to get rid of his money. He is living at the rate of one or two thousand dollars a day in Paris, but that does not make way with his daily income, which frequently runs up to $16,000. He has tried all the ways to spend his money, but the income always leads the expenditures. He is expending a fortune every month on his wife, and to-day she is living in a more princely style than the wife of the highest dignitary in France. Mr. Mackay ransacked all Europe for the most expensive shawl, the most brilliant diamond, the prettiest dress, the most costly watch, and now the report comes from Paris that he has found the largest pearl in Europe, and will give it to his wife.

The Fox river overflow bill passed; ayes, 47; noes, 30.

SENATE.

In the Senate the bill passed making the first biennial session in 1883, and cutting off all stationery to officers except thirty dollars to the Lieutenant Governor and also twenty dollars to newspaper reporters.

Also appropriating $7,000 to the fish commission.

For supplying common schools with Webster's dictionaries.

The motion was adopted to hold a session this evening and then adjourn over till Monday evening.

SURRENDERED.

Special to the Gazette.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—Max Sommers surrendered to the police to-day, and confessed to the embezzlement of $3,000 in New York.

A Cross Baby.

Nothing is so conducive to a man's remaining a bachelor as stopping for one night at the house of a married friend and being kept awake for five or six hours by the crying of a cross baby. All cross and crying babies need only Hop Bitters to make them well and smiling. Young man, remember this.—Ed.

TUMBLING SHARES.

NEW YORK, February 23.—There was almost a panic on the stock exchange to-day. The market opened fairly steady, and, on unexpected support from the Lake Shore, which advanced from 108 to 109½, and the news that the Bank of England had reduced its rate, the whole list was lifted fractionally. The improvement was, however, of but short duration. Before midday prices began to slip, next to slide, and before 2 o'clock they had struck the pace of a panic. It was bad enough the throwing overboard of stocks on Tuesday, but it was worse to-day. In an hour the room was full of the flotsam and jetsam of all sorts of shares tumbled over by timid bulls and by commission houses, from the credit side of whose ledgers customers' margins had disappeared. In fact, it was much more due to the scurrying of margins than to any pronounced decline of the market and serious decline occurred. The bulls did not stand upon the order of their going, but went, and that, too, after such a helter-skelter fashion that quotations were marked down from two to ninety points. The latter figures were the result of a brilliant explosion in the firework show of a Richmond and Donville property. Such a catastrophe, however, had been long expected and guarded against, and it is to be presumed that nobody was seriously hurt, and that the services of the financial coroner to dispose of the dead bodies will not be required.

GARFIELD MEMORIAL.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The cards of invitation to the Garfield obsequies in the House were received from the engraver yesterday afternoon, and are among the finest pieces of engraving ever executed in this country. The cards are ornamented by a handsome vignette of the martyr President facing toward the right and surrounded by a drapery of American flags. Above the picture is a drawn sword, and beneath pictures of the White House and Capitol. The only inscriptions are: "Memorial service of James Abram Garfield, President March 4, 1881, died Sept. 19, 1881. Eulogy by the Hon. James G. Blaine, House of Representatives, Feb. 27, 1882."

CORPORATIONS.

MADISON, Feb. 23.—Articles for the incorporation of the following new companies were filed to-day in the office of the Secretary of State: Wisconsin Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, with headquarters at Green Bay. Incorporators: C. D. Robinson, John C. Neville, Xavier Martin, O. L. Harder, Charles E. Vroman. Dunn County Pressed Brick Company, of Menomonee, Incorporators: William Wilson and J. G. Knapp. Menomonee. J. G. Thorp and George B. Shaw, Eau Claire. Capital stock, $50,000.

DARK DEEDS.

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 23.—J. W. Norris, Postmaster, and a leading merchant at Rice, Texas, was called out of his house the night before last by two men who asked him to go to his store and sell them some goods. He went, but returned in a few minutes, and told his wife that they had shot him, and died almost instantly.

77 AND 19.

WAUKESHA, Feb. 23.—The May and December marriage, as it were, of George A. Hime, aged 77, and Miss Gertrude Rowe, aged 19, took place here to-night. There was considerable love-making on the part of the old gentleman until about a month ago, when he suddenly left home. It was rumored he would not marry Miss Rowe. She not knowing where he had gone, and believing the report, immediately instituted suit for breach of promise, which it seems had the desired effect, and brought the old gentleman to time.

IT IS THE HEIGHT OF FOLLY to wait until you are in bed with disease you may not get over for months, when you can be cured during the early symptoms by Parker's Ginger Tonic. We have seen the sickliest families made the healthiest by a timely use of this pure medicine.—Observer.

FIVE MEN KILLED.

MILLSBURG, O., Feb. 23.—Word was received here to-day of a terrible accident which occurred yesterday in New Carlisle, Ohio. The boiler of a portable sawmill exploded killing the following:

George Stulzman, Michael Immel, Mr. Hirschberger, and two men named Berchly. Michael Streetman was injured so that amputation of one leg was necessary recovery is doubtful.

These were the only men about the mill at the time. The boiler was known to be in bad condition for some time.

Incredible.

F. A. Soratch, druggist, Ruthven, Ont., writes: "I have the greatest confidence in your BUCKLE BROOD BITTERS. In one case with which I am personally acquainted, their success was almost incredible. One lady told me that half a bottle did her more good than hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine she had previously taken." Price $1.00, trial size 10 cents.

IN MALE ATTIRE.

NEW YORK, February 23.—The country has borne a very bounteous crop of male woman in the last few years. Dr. Mary Walker and Mrs. Ki Jon gave several respected historical persons more or less ancient a very close race in achieving masculinity. But it is questionable if Miss Jennie Westbrook, or Francis De Nyse, or whatever she is called, does not in a quiet way hold her own with any of them. They had her in the Tombs to-day on a charge of vagrancy, and her record, as shown up there, will beat a heap of old fellows who started in the male business under much more encouraging circumstances. Frances was not satisfied with donning the raiment and putting on the style of the sterner sex, and she went pluckily to work at their own pet callings. She was a writer and a book-keeper, but then started off as a commercial traveler, and out-sold, out-talked, and out-manuevered a whole score of legitimately organized drummers. No small fault could be found with Frances for making a living in pantaloons that was denied her in petticoats; but, suspected of inveigling confiding young misses, and in killypop letter-writing and the like, she was arraigned by Detective Adams. He could only charge her with being in male attire. That charge had no value in the court, and she was committed for disorderly conduct.

DESERVING ARTICLES ARE ALWAYS APPRECIATED. The exceptional cleanliness of Parker's Hair Balsam makes it popular. Gray hairs are impossible with its occasional use.

A MONSTROSITY.

LINCOLN, Ill., Feb. 23.—Logan county furnishes one of the most horrible cases of childbirth yet recorded in the annals of medical practice. Learning that a monstrosity had appeared in Lawndale, Logan county, your reporter hastened to the spot and discovered the following facts: On the 21st inst. a female child, was born to Mrs. Lee Wright, wife of a poor farmer. The child presents a case of strange deformity. The head is almost pyramidal in form, being flattened on the posterior aspect. The eyes protrude, but bear no resemblance of the relations which ordinary eyes bear to each other, one protruding horribly and located high in the face, while the left one is low down on the cheek, and glimmers mildly in contrast with the stare of the other, which overhangs on the cheek. The mouth is as round as though bored with an augur, while the tongue vibrates like that of a serpent, the palate being cleft. The trunk of the child has a normal development, but the extremities are deformed. The left hand has no distinguished fingers, but is simply an unwieldy lump, terminating at a point, having a split at the end, on either side of which is a claw. The right hand is similarly deformed, except there is a sort of development which might be called a little finger. The feet are similarly deformed, being clubbed, with simple knots for toes, the right foot corresponding in deformity to the left hand and vice versa. Hundreds of people have thronged to the place to witness the unwelcome spectacle. Dr. Wilson, of this city, and Dr. Bailey, of Lawndale, who assisted at its delivery, pronounced it one of the most remarkable monstrosities of the century. It may be added in this connection that the mother gave birth three years ago to triplets, one of which lived to be seventeen months old and this is her sixth child. The parents are poor and honest people, and should the child live, what is now commonly regarded as a misfortune may prove their pecuniary success.

Second Edition of Job.

Mrs. Ogden, N. Division Street, Buffalo, says: "I cannot be too thankful that I was induced to try SPENCER'S BLOSSOM. I was at one time afraid I should never be able to get out again. I seemed to be a second edition of Job without his patience; my face and body were one vast collection of boils and pimples; since taking one bottle of your SPENCER BLOSSOM I am quite cured, all eruptions have disappeared, and I feel better than I have in a long time." Price 50 cents, trial bottles 10 cents.

Sold by A. J. Roberts and Sherer & Co.

Saving By Headwork.

A great mathematician said if he had but three minutes in which to perform a problem on which his life depended he would spend two or three minutes in thinking how best to do it. So great did he value the art of reflecting well over the business to be done even in the greatest emergencies of life. And could we not all vastly better our work in this world by more forethought? How much our heads could save our feet in our daily household! One reason so many women are such efficient workers is just because of their fixed habits. If they have occasion to go up stairs they reflect whether there is anything that needs to be taken up, thus saving one or two journeys.

The same when they are going down again. When the table is cleared, the articles to be taken into the cellar are placed all together on a tray and taken down at once. While the other work is going on the busy mind runs through and plans out the sewing-work that is to be taken up when a leisure time comes. The way of cutting it out. The manner of trimming, and the whole general plan is gone through with before a needle is taken up very likely. Before rising in the morning the breakfast is thoroughly planned, and the order in which the different details are to be carried out is quite decided upon. It makes all work easier to have it thus planned beforehand, and many a weary woman might secure many bright half-hours to herself every week if she would but inaugurate the system. It is like the packing a trunk—you know how easy it is for one skilled in the business to put in a third more than one who piles things in "just as it happens." It is always such a pleasure to look back on a well-packed day and see just what has been done. People whose days are full of idleness and ease do not have the monopoly of happiness by any means. As uncomfortable people as I have known have been summing up their days and finding nothing to do all summer but to fan themselves. They seemed so utterly over-burdened with the task that one could hardly help commiserating them. Occasionally a few flies fluttered into their shaded rooms and had to be whisked out, and then there was work in earnest and tribulation enough. Surely those people who have nothing else to bear are rarely able to bear themselves. From what I have seen of both sides, over-worked people do not seem to me so miserable as those who have nothing to do. They have at least the noble compensation of feeling that they are of use in the world; that they add largely to the comfort and well-being of others, and belong to the producers instead of mere consumers. To one who has led a busy life absolute idleness would be the most irksome penance. But head work will lighten labor; so use it liberally, and teach the art to those about you.—Springfield Farm and Fireside.

Obtained What He Wanted.

The Philadelphia Times contains an account of a young man employed in a large iron manufacturing house in that city, who became dissatisfied with the wages he was getting—(this alone gives the story a fishy look)—and he went to his employers and told them frankly that he was leaving the way. Some young men, if they had wanted more pay, would have tied younger than let it be known, but this young duck didn't seem to care for anything. So he told them he must have more currency, and they said they would raise him from $60 a month to $75. He was a shipping clerk, and had few equals as an artist with a camel's hair brush and a pot of lamp-black. He could not, therefore, accept $75 a month, and he told them so. Then they humbled themselves before him and asked him what he would take to say nothing more about it. The shipping clerk said he wanted a partnership interest, having read of such things probably in a novel. As soon as the members of the firm could recover from their astonishment, they promptly kicked him out. All this occurred eight years ago. "To-day," says the Times, "he is the leading member of a firm which employs nearly three thousand men and boys, turns out fifty thousand tons of iron a year, pays out over a hundred dollars a month in wages and salaries, and does a business of $1,000,000 a year. And we suppose if any one of those three thousand men and boys should go into his office and ask for a partnership interest in the concern they would get it, would they? Or would he stand them on a spring-board and fire them through the roof?—Peck's Sun.

A DISTINGUISHED looking man appeared in a California town, and, falling ill, could not tell his wants in English. Several Germans visited him, and he talked to them, asking one of them to write his will, in which he described himself as Count Carl von Schiller, and gave to each of his benefactors from 10,000 to 15,000 marks. Renewed attentions were paid to him; but now he is in jail.

Joked to Death.

Frederick Miller, a large, athletic, but weak-minded laborer, died in a cell in the Second and Queen street police station on Sunday night, literally and actually frightened to death. Miller lived with his wife and step-daughter in a tenement back of No. 903 South Fifth street. He had worked for several years as a laborer in the lumber yard of Robert Clark, at Fifth street and Washington avenue. Among his fellow-laborers Miller was noted for his feats of strength and for his weakness of mind. Last August, a board-yard cut that had installed himself on the premises became troublesome to neighbors, and Mr. Clark ordered him to be killed. Miller's tender heart caused him to interpose between the dog and his executioner. He took the animal in his arms and was rewarded by a snap which lacerated his lip. A physician cauterized the wound, and nothing would have been heard of it afterward had not his fellow-workmen deemed it a proper subject to tease their feeble-minded comrade, of whose strength they stood in awe. He seemed to take little notice of it at first, but within a month the wound broke out in renewed ulceration. This, instead of abating the ill-considered jests of his fellows, seemed rather to aggravate them. When he came to work in the morning their salutation was: "Well, you ain't mad yet," and through-out the day they persisted in keeping the subject before his mind until he became a prey to the delusion that hydrophobia had seized him. He had repeatedly told his wife that the dread was on him, but the active phase of the delusion began only on last Wednesday. He complained of an oppression of the chest, which prevented him from breathing, and professed to feel an aversion which prevented him from taking anything liquid. There was entire absence of any of the symptoms indicating true hydrophobia.

The wound lately healed was not especially sensitive, although he sat rubbing it with his finger tips by the hour and moaning his dreads in disjointed sentences. Excepting the labored breathing there was no indication of spasmodic action of the vital functions. Dr. Duval, of Fourth and Christian streets, was called on Thursday. Miller's employer had endeavored to make his mind easy by telling him that he might lay off for a few days, but this did not diminish his apprehensions. Dr. Duval made a close examination, and concluded that the labored breathing—the only disordered function—was far as he could ascertain—was due simply to a severe cold. He endeavored to quiet the alarm of the patient and succeeded so well that he was persuaded to take a few swallows of a harmless potion which was prescribed merely to test the genuineness of the aversion to liquids. Miller said that he could swallow anything the doctor mixed all right, and after endeavoring to impress on his mind that he had no symptoms of hydrophobia the physician left. When Mrs. Miller a few minutes afterward tried him again with the potion he threw the bowl and contents at her, narrowly missing doing her serious injury. His fear of water and hot water, in accordance with medical advice, and the contact of his skin with fluids did not produce any sign of aversion. He, however, refused to eat or drink anything, but sat moaning by the hour, head resting on one hand, while with the other he incessantly felt the lip where the dog had bitten. Now and again he would start up suddenly and rush to the window or door, complaining of a choking sensation. Neighbors kindly relieved Mrs. Miller in waiting on him, and endeavored to calm his nerves and persuade him out of his delusion. Dr. Duval called again on Friday and saw no reason to change his belief that hydrophobia was not the cause of the ailment, although he became convinced that the delusion was likely to progress to dangerous mania. He so advised Mrs. Miller and suggested that she should have help constantly by her. This her kind-hearted neighbors enabled her to do.

Miller was sitting with his face buried in his hands when Dr. Duval called on Saturday. His mania had progressed very noticeably and the case was plainly one for hospital treatment. In his conference with Mrs. Miller he expressed his opinion. Within an hour after the physician's departure Miller suddenly aroused from his lethargic condition, and, rushing to the door, took three or four breaths of fresh air. Returning, he advanced toward his wife in a menacing manner and demanded to know whether she would consent to send him to the hospital. She replied that she would not, and this seemed to pacify him. A few minutes afterward she went out, leaving him in the charge of a neighbor of very diminutive size and strength. She returned to find the neighbor shooting through the door like a bolt from a catapult under the impulse of her husband's enormous strength, increased by acute mania. He had suddenly arisen from his lethargy, and, catching the unfortunate neighbor by the throat, with the words, "hospital," will you, hurried him through the door and set him sprawling, although terribly alarmed, entered with the hope of pacifying him, but he ejected her with equal violence, and when alone in the room said, "I'll have some amusement." The few chairs were first broken into kindling wood; a table was demolished; the few mantel ornaments were smashed, and in the wildness of his craziness the maniac turned over the stove and scattered the burning coals over the floor. In a minute the room was all ablaze. Neighbors came promptly with buckets of water and the fire was extinguished. A policeman was summoned and Miller was taken to the police station at Second and Queen streets. This was nine p. m. on Saturday.

Dr. Duval had gone with Miller from his house to the cell, and advised that he should be taken at once to some hospital where there are appliances for treating the violent maniac. The officers on duty, however, said that they had no authority to send him to any place except the almshouse, and they could not send him there until they had the authorization of the guardians of the poor. Hence, he remained in the uncomfortable hospitality of a police cell. His violent mood had now become very frequent. The janitor discovered him hanging by a suspender in time to prevent suicide. Once during the day he was brought into the front room to accommodate Dr. Duval, who continued to ameliorate his condition as well as he could. A hypodermic injection of morphia of unusual strength, so far from quieting him, seemed rather to excite him the more, and seven strong officers had to hold him down to return him to his cell. In another paroxysm he made frantic efforts to jerk the cell door open, and actually bent the heavy iron bars. Efforts were made to persuade him to eat and drink, but he hurled the vessels containing the food at the person who offered it. At ten o'clock on Sunday night he was sitting, seemingly tranquil, with his face buried in his hands. He seemed to be breathing regularly, and, in spite of Dr. Duval's remark that he would not be surprised to find him dead in the morning, the policeman thought him all right. An hour afterward he was found dead on the floor of the cell, which he had occupied for twenty-six hours.

As to the cause of his death there can be little doubt. The inconsiderate jokes of his fellow-workmen had preyed upon an infirm mind until a mania as deadly as hydrophobia thoroughly possessed him.—Philadelphia Press.

The Letter Clip and the Dog.

It happened at a well-known restaurant day before yesterday. A young man came in with a maiden with flame-colored hair and followed by a blonde-completed dog that looked like the last remnant of a third-rate family of prairie wolves. The young man and woman, who were evidently from the rural districts, took their seats at a table and called for something to operate on, while the dog amused himself by sneaking around under tables and chairs, like a young man trying to find his hat on the floor after church is out.

Things went along in this manner for the space of five minutes, when a change came over the spirit of the scene. The dog had entangled himself for the thirteenth time among the rounds of a respectable old gentleman's chair, and the room being dark enough to screen him, and not feeling particularly pleased over the intrusion, he reached down, and, as the latter end of the beast disappeared beneath the table, slipped upon the extremity of his tail a large brass paper clip with serrated edges and a mainspring like the running gears of a catapult.

The dog stopped, but for an instant. When he started he went off as though he was wound up to run all day. He opened his mouth, and a howl that tore the hearts of his listeners and froze the blood of a policeman, two blocks away, came out and ran around the room modified and distorted into a thousand different echoes, and no two alike. Then he ran under a stand full of glassware. Before the jingling and shivering had ceased he was clear down at the other end of the room, turning around a hundred times a minute, in a vain, despairing effort to grasp with his teeth the terrible incubus that thereby hung his tail, and making more noise with his mouth than a switch-engine with her steam-box packing worn out.

"Merciful heavens! The beast is mad," shouted a fat man, springing up and overturning a table and all its contents into the lap of his friend opposite. "Hey! head 'im off. Snub him. Chase him into a corner. Shoot him, somebody, quick," and fatty tore around worse than two dogs.

"Drop it, old beeswax," vociferated the owner of the animal. "You touches a hair of my—'Whoo! Thunder. Run. Run. Run. He'll eat you whole and he hopped around trying to find the piece bitten out of his leg as the dog passed.

By this time the kitchen force, the bar-tender, two men, a policeman and a reporter had crowded into the room.

Only three tables were standing, one chair had lost its back, the maiden with flame-colored hair had climbed upon the counter and was hugging the gas-burner for protection, while the dog had essayed a northwest passage under the stove, got fast in the attempt, and lay panting and wailing and kicking and making more noise than all the rest of them. His owner stooped down to pull him out by the tail, and found the cause of all the commotion—the little brass letter clip. It was standing to its post like a man, and would have died before it would have deserted. It was removed, but the revulsion of feeling was too much for the dog, and he tried to crawl through the floor. The old gent who had instigated the revolt had gone, and about two minutes later the young man and woman came out and went down the street. The dog that followed them looked as though he had been sat upon by a council of war. There wasn't hair enough upon his back to make a paste-brush.—Burlington Hawkeye.

The Protective Effect of Vaccination.

Dr. Henry Tompkins, Medical Superintendent of the Fever Hospital, belonging to the Manchester Road Infirmary at Monsall, in a paper which he read recently at Owens College, said: "The most striking of all evidence is, perhaps, that derived from the small-pox hospitals themselves. Here the protective influence of vaccination is proved in a manner beyond all cavil. At Highgate, during an experience of forty years, no nurse or servant having been revaccinated has ever contracted the disease, and evidence of the same character I can myself bring forward, for during the whole time that I have had charge of the Fever Hospital more than a thousand cases of small-pox have passed under my care, yet no servant, nurse, porter or other person engaged there has, after revaccination, ever taken it, though exposed daily to infection in its most concentrated form. One woman, a laundress, who escaped vaccination, took the disease and died; one nurse, who some years before had suffered from small-pox, and was then considered protected, had a very mild attack; and this summer a workman, who did not live on the premises, but came in to work as a painter, was not vaccinated, and had rather a severe attack, and still more recently a servant, who by an oversight was allowed to go about her work three days before being vaccinated, had, before the latter had run its course, a slight abortive attack. Again, among all the students who during the past two years have attended the hospital for clinical instruction, not one has suffered, all having been revaccinated before being permitted to enter the small-pox wards. And in their case the false argument which opponents of vaccination have brought forward to explain the immunity enjoyed by nurses and others in attendance on the sick—viz.: that constant intercourse and exposure to infection renders them proof against it by the system becoming inured to the poison, cannot be applied, as these gentlemen attend the hospital only a few hours once a week, and are mostly enthusiastic or conscientious anti-vaccinators to produce evidence like this on his side of the question, or to bring forward even half a dozen persons, chosen them when he may, who have not been protected against small-pox, and expose them as the students are exposed, without more or less of the number taking the disease. Facts such as these should convert the most ardent anti-vaccinator from his folly, and convince him that a weapon of defense so powerful as vaccination should not be left to the pleasure of the individual, but that the State has the right and duty to look after its most thorough performance."—London Times.

—A horse, attached to a cutter, made a lively runaway on South Main street yesterday. The horse broke into the yard of Captain La Grange, made straight for the house, but fell on the front porch, breaking a window, and damaging the cutter and harness slightly.

—St. Patrick's Temperance Society went to Edgerton this morning, for the purpose of attending the funeral of the late Maheli Conway, which was held at that place at 9 o'clock. Three carryall loads of the members of the society went out, beside a number who went in other conveyances.

—The citizens of Colorado Springs, Colorado, who were former residents of Wisconsin, held a social reunion at that place on the 9th of February. Among those who were present were five from Rock county—Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Rowley, Mrs. G. C. Howard, Mrs. Mirtie Farler, and Mr. W. E. Rockwell.

—The report which came from Washington that Hon. Frank Leland would probably lose his position as consul at Hamilton, Ontario, and his place filled by W. P. Fressenden, of Maine, has no foundation in fact. Mr. Leland has served the United States so well in that position, that he will be permitted to remain as long as he chooses.

—Beloit is fortunate in having secured the appearance in that city of that well known prima donna—Litta. The concert will be given at Goodwin's Opera house, next Monday evening. One part of the programme will embrace one entire act of Verdi's Il Trovatore, in which Litta is especially fine. The company is a strong one throughout, and the lovers of music in Janesville who will attend the Litta concert at Beloit will never regret the outlay of time and money.

—The common council and citizens of Racine are having a high time over the ineffectiveness of the Racine fire department, and so hot has become the kicking on the part of the council and people, that the chairman of the fire department committee has resigned his aldermanic mantle, that some of the kickers might have a chance to remedy the evils and make a live and effective department.

The "second city" surely ought to have something it could use to put out fires with.

—The fourth annual session of the Grand Council of the Royal Arcanum will be held in Milwaukee, Tuesday, March 14th, 1882, at Fraternity Hall, 216 Grand Avenue. Council will be called to order at 2 o'clock p. m. The Grand Officers trust that all Councils in this jurisdiction will be represented at the meeting, and would especially urge all Councils not represented at last session to be represented at this session. All new Councils instituted since last session are particularly requested to send a representative, that they may learn the workings of the noble Order.

—G. A. Libbey & Son presented their contract for furnishing the steam heating apparatus at the county poor farm, to the county clerk to-day, which was duly certified to by the chairman of the building committee of the county supervisors, setting forth that its terms had been fully complied with, and the contractors were entitled to the sum of eight hundred dollars, the balance due from the county, making the total sum paid for the heating apparatus $2,500.00. The order was drawn on the county treasury, and a receipt given, and the contractors went their way rejoicing.

—The sixth annual party of the Rockford Rifles was held at their armory in Rockford on Wednesday evening, and according to the Rockford Gazette, it was a grand affair, consisting of a promenade concert and dance. In a long account of the party, the Gazette of the 23d says: "Among the person present from abroad were noticed the genial countenances of Captain H. A. Smith, of the Janesville Guards, with his wife, also from the same company First Lieutenant Glass and wife, Sergeant Thor Judd and wife, Corporals Will Evenson, Chas. Putnam, Chas. Hemmings, Ham Richardson, Ward Williams, J. W. Bates, and Charles Blay. Also Messrs. B. Dearborn and B. Palker." The squad of the Guards made the round trip to Rockford and back for one dollar over the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway. They speak in the highest terms of the treatment received at the hands of the Rockford militiamen, and that a "rousing good time" hardly gives expression to the enjoyment of the visit.

—Returned After Many Years. Seventeen years ago there was a boy living with Mr. Joseph Spalding, near this city, named James Boyd. He had lived there about four years, and seventeen years ago was about thirteen years old. Mr. Spalding decided the boy should go to school, but James rebelled, joined an emigrant train and started for the Far West. When he reached the Territories, he made his home principally with the Indians, chiefly with the Sioux, and from that day, away back in 1865, until he reached this city on Tuesday, he had not heard a word from Janesville. During these seventeen years he had not seen a railway, in fact hardly any civilization whatever, and for four years of that time he did not see the face of a white woman.

He began trading with the Indians and has been quite successful. Seventeen years of roughing it, however, made him long for a change, and he made a proposition to his partner to go to Miles City, Montana, and see the cars and take a ride. They started and made the long trip to St. Paul, and liked the new and easy way of riding so well that Boyd concluded to come to Janesville, and did so. He found many changes in the city, especially among the population. He had grown out the recollection of nearly every body, as not a word had been received from him. He has much changed himself since he rebelled against the kind wishes of the generous and open hearted Mr. Spalding, and although he has spent so many years with the Reds he has much improved and returns to his old home, with a manly bearing and much hardy experience.

Fell Down. Mr. Albert Anderson, York Street, Buffalo, fell down stairs and severely bruised his knee. A few applications of Dr. THOMAS' ELECTRIC OIL entirely cured him.

The Rock County Agricultural Society.

The officers of the Rock County Agricultural Society are quietly at work arranging the details and programme for their annual exhibition, which will be held on the society's grounds in this city next fall, the exact dates and dates not yet having been fixed. The officers of the society have the assurance of the leading agriculturists of the county of their hearty co-operation and support, in making the next exhibition eclipse any fair ever before held in Janesville. The stock growers, the mechanics and artisans, from all parts of the county, have also given the officers to understand that they, too, will give the society their best services in making the exhibition a grand success in every particular. There will be at this exhibition a chance to show the speed of fast horses, on the track; equestrian displays, etc., etc.; a fireman's tournament, and many new and interesting features, which will tend to draw and entertain the people. The floating debt of the society is now light, the stock of the company is almost at par value, and with the united and harmonious action of all parties interested, which is now assured, there is no reason why the coming exhibition should not prove a grand success. It should be so. An attractive and interesting premium list is now in course of preparation which is intended to cover all branches of industry, and will shortly be published in pamphlet form for free distribution. Let every one second the efforts of the officers of the Rock County Agricultural Society, and send it booming along.

Fees of Doctors.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.—Ed.

What Congressmen Knows About Farming.

Frank Moore writes from Washington to the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin, a batch of gossip on Wisconsin men in Congress, and gives the following on Mr. Williams:

"My little note on Charlie Williams' Dakota farm is being magnified. He hasn't any Nebraska land. He has twelve hundred acres all told, in southern Dakota, two hundred of which was turned up with a breaking plow last summer. His land and breaking stand him about $4,000, an amount he has saved from his last few years salary. He could have invested this amount in a more stylish way, at the hotels in Saratoga and at the silk stores in Broadway, but after consulting his wife, concluded to take a chance with border herdsmen and farmers. He spent a month or two out there with them last summer, and will repeat his visits the coming season. His plow land will be near a railroad station. He has a half section of fine grazing and hay land, on the bottoms ten miles away. Cheever and other Rock county men have a number of sections beside him. They talk of sending out three hundred young cattle in the spring.

"During Mr. Williams' visit last fall, he stopped over night with a young married couple from Janesville, who are opening a farm near by him. They had one cow and an ox team, and were regretting they hadn't the means to add a few cows, as they could do so well at butter-making, beside the increase. The matter was talked over at length in their shanty that night, and Charlie agreed to send them out a few trial cows, for half the allowance they were willing to pay him. On his return home he secured four of the best blooded cows in the county, with as many calves, and shipped them to the young farmer. All went through safe, but one of the calves broke a leg in leaving the cars. Such is the upshot of Mr. Williams' Dakota farm speculation. He is not over-sanguine, as to results, but is looking for healthy returns to mind, body and pocket."

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

STATEMENT UNDER OATH.

"I HAVE been afflicted for twenty years with an obstinate skin disease, called by some M. D.'s Psoriasis, and others Leprosy, commencing on my scalp, and, in spite of all I could do with the help of the most skillful doctors, it slowly but surely extended until a year ago this winter it covered my entire person in form of dry scales. For the last three years I have been unable to do any labor, and suffering intensely all the time. Every morning there would be nearly a dust-pailful of scales taken from the sheet on my bed, some of them half as large as the envelope containing this letter. In the latter part of the winter my skin commenced cracking open. I tried everything, almost, that could be thought of, without any relief. The 12th of June I started West, in hopes I could reach
